CHANGES IN POSTAL RATES APRIL 15

SERVICE CHARGE ON PARCELS EXCEPT FROM RURAL ROUTES

Rate on Post Cards, Except Government, Will be Two Cents—Changes Made in Classes—Weight Limits for Parcel Post From 50 to 70 Pounds.

One of the outstanding features of the rate changes in the new postal bill and which will affect the great number of mail users, postal officials declare, is the increased rate on all postcards, except government cards.

This rate has been raised to two cents, whether they bear written or printed matter. This rate also will apply to each portion of double or reply postcards. Postal officials declare that the postage on the reply half of the card in this instance need not be affixed thereto until it is detached and mailed for return. This includes all cards within the size for postcards, whether or not they bear the words "postcard" or "private mailing cards."

Cards bearing these words, even tho not within the size for postcards will be chargeable with two cents postage each if in print or the letter rate if wholly or partly in writing.

Other features of changes in the postage rates and the bill include:

On an after April 15, which day the rate becomes effective, mail of the third class will embrace all matter now included in the third and fourth classes up to and including eight ounces in weight, while the new fourth class will include all matter formerly in the third and fourth classes over eight ounces in weight and not exceeding 70 pounds in the first, second and third zones, and not exceeding 50 pounds when mailed for delivery in any of the other zones.

The rate of postage on all matter embraced in the new third class will be 1½ cents for each two ounces or fraction of two ounces up to and including eight ounces in weight, except that the rate on books, catalogues, seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants shall continue to be one cent each for two ounces on parcels not exceeding eight ounces in weight.

The present fourth class pound rates according to distance or zone, will apply to all matter weighing more than eight ounces, except that of the first and second classes and in addition there will be a service charge of two cents for each parcel, except upon parcels originating on rural routes such charge to be prepaid in the same manner as the regular postage. Parcels mailed on all rural routes should be indorsed as "mailed on rural route," in order that the parcels will show that they are exempt from the service charge.

Parcels to be given special handling will be chargeable with the regular fourth class rates, together with the two cent service charge and 25 cents additional postage on each parcel, all to be fully prepaid by stamps affixed. Such parcels should be prominently indorsed by the sender "Special Handling," preferably in the space immediately below the postage stamps and above the address.

The permissible written additions to mail of the third and fourth classes, respectively, may be placed on either third or fourth class matter, or on both.

The provision of paragraph 6 (b), section 453, postal laws and regulations, permitting the acceptance of sealed parcels for mailing at the fourth class rate of postage when they bear the prescribed printed return card of the sender and the indicia as to contents and opening for postal inspection will be applicable to all third class mail except circulars and other miscellaneous printed matter.

Perishable articles of the third class may be forwarded or returned rated with the postage therefor to be collected on delivery in the same manner as perishable fourth class mail.

All matter subject to the increased rates on and after April 15, must bear the required postage. If mailed under permit without stamps affixed in accordance with the provisions of section 452, postal laws and regulations, the permit indicia must, of course, show the proper amount of postage paid.

A Ford car going north on Court street this morning at a pretty good speed threw a spare tire and rim in front of the American hotel. A. G. Leland of Columbus, who was standing in front of the hotel caught the rolling tire. The owner never discovered his loss and just kept on his way.

Arkansas City Schools Have Lots of Twins

Twenty-three pairs of twins and three "half pairs" responded to the call of C. E. St. John, superintendent of Arkansas City schools, when he requested that they report for an official photograph. Two in the "half pair" class were teachers. There are 3,750 persons in the school system, so that the Arkansas City youngster seemingly has one chance out of seventy-five to be a twin. Here are the children who have been causing the Arkansas City people to "see double."

MANY FIRES CAUSE ONLY SMALL LOSS

Blaze at Jay Henry's, Wittich's Confectionery and Seyfert's Park.

The fire department was called three times in thirty-six hours up to Sunday night. The Jay Henry home Saturday morning. The brush fire in Seyfert park Sunday afternoon and the fire at Wittich's confectionery Sunday evening.

The fire at the Henry home, at the intersection of East Main and Mound streets, Saturday, the roof was destroyed and was a considerable loss on household goods. Hummel and Plum carried the risk on the household goods and T. P. Brown on the house. The loss has not been estimated.

The fire at Wittich's was caused by pulling out the plug under the chocolate tank. The gas came out in a rush and ignited causing quite a flame. The loss was slight.

HE WON'T BE KING

Sir Charles Edward Archibald Watin Hamilton, Bart., of Selsey, Sussex, England, one of the few Englishmen to have embraced the Islamic faith, has refused the throne of Albania, offered him by Albanian government heads. Sir Charles, whose two baronetcies come down one from 1776 and the other from 1819, said he felt it was his duty to stay in England.

BASKETBALL TOURNAMENT COMPLETED

Williamsport Won the Championship Over Jackson 25 to 17.

FINALS EXCITING

Atlanta Girls Defeat Saltcreek by the Score of 21 to 10.

The first contest Saturday morning in the basketball tournament was between the Williamsport and Scioto boys and was a well fought game, either team having hard luck on their shots. Scioto could not locate the basket at all at times and play after play was executed only to have the ball roll out of the basket or bounce away from it. Scioto's offense was splendid and did not slacken the entire game. Williamsport was always in the game and was held until the last quarter when they scored half their points on a rally. Scioto's defense weakened this quarter, but both teams fought to the finish.

This game was a game won and lost on the ability of the foul shooters. Williamsport made good on three out of nine, while Saltcreek made eight good out of nineteen. One basket was made in the first half by each team, but not until the second quarter. The game ended Saltcreek 15, Williamsport 7.

Jackson-Atlanta Boys.

Atlanta completely bewildered Jackson by its offensive attack and brilliant defense in the first quarter and held them without a counter while they registered nine. At the beginning of the second quarter Atlanta again started by scoring a field goal, bringing the score up to eleven. Jackson started then to overtake this lead, and by some consistent playing gradually overcame the lead and with but a few minutes to play overtook Atlanta, and passed them and held their own until the end of the game. In doing this they held them to a lone field goal in the second half while they registered five and two free throws.

An Omelet, but It Was Not Up to Reputation

By GEORGE MUNSON

"HERE! What do you mean by bringing me this stuff when I asked for an omelet Tartarin?" I inquired of the waiter who served me in the Cafe Napoleon.
The waiter shrugged his shoulders. "Hélas, monsieur, we cannot provide the original omelet Tartarin any more," he said. "Only Monsieur Alphonse, the chef, knew how to make them, and he is gone to America. He works now in the Hotel St. Charles."
The waiter glanced toward the dark-eyed Mademoiselle Dubois, at the cash counter.
"You see, monsieur," he explained, "there was a quarrel between Monsieur Napoleon, the proprietor, and Monsieur Alphonse, the chef, over Mademoiselle Dubois, of the cash counter. Each wanted to marry her. Eh bien! Monsieur Alphonse was rejected, and he went to America. And Monsieur Napoleon—"
"Married her?" I asked.
"Mais, oui, monsieur. Mademoiselle Dubois is now Madame Napoleon. Only this is a secret, understand, because it would spoil business if it were known."

I spoke to stout little Monsieur Napoleon about the matter. I did not reveal to him my knowledge of the secret, however, though I saw the pretty cashier look suspiciously at me.
"Monsieur," said the proprietor, "verily, since Monsieur Alphonse left me my custom has fallen off sadly. He was the inventor of the famous omelet Tartarin. Now, alas, the omelet Tartarin is dead."
Suddenly he caught me by the lapels of my coat, and stood holding me thus. "Monsieur," he said, "will you not be an ambassador of peace for me? Monsieur, you are of New York. You know the Hotel St. Charles. When you return, will you not go to the accursed one and beg him to return?"
"And tell him we shall all be good friends again," continued Madame Napoleon, or, rather, Mademoiselle Dubois, as she must be known.
The first evening I had to spare after my arrival in New York I went to the St. Charles and ordered an omelet Tartarin.
"Is not Monsieur Alphonse your chef?" I inquired of the head waiter.
"Yes, sir," he answered. "Fine chef, too, he's supposed to be. He's got a gold medal from the late king of Belgium for his omelet Tartarin. Didn't you find it distinguished, sir?"
"No," I shouted. "I've eaten bad omelets in most countries of the world, but for sheer unsavoriness I've never tasted one as bad as the one I've had here tonight. Bring your chef to me at once."

The waiter looked as if he was going to burst into tears, but he summoned the chef.
"What's this about my omelet?" he began truculently.
"Monsieur Alphonse," I said, "you are a fake and a fraud. Either you are not the original Monsieur Alphonse, or else you have lost your mind. Come, out with your confession. What's the matter?"
"Sacre, monsieur, do you asperse my omelet?" he began.
"Your omelet is as degenerate as yourself," I answered. Now, listen, Alphonse! Monsieur Napoleon wants you to return. He is pining for you?"
"Ah, mon Dieu, the scoundrel stole my sweetheart," said the chef. "Since then I have vowed never, never to cook the correct omelet Tartarin."
"Alphonse," I answered, "you are a married man!"
"Monsieur!" he gasped. "How do you know?"
"By the furtive look in your eye," I answered.
"Monsieur, I am married three months," he answered. "I adore, I worship—"
"Never mind that! How about Mademoiselle Dubois, now Madame Napoleon?"
"Monsieur, a passing infatuation truly. I never cared for her. It was merely that—"
"Alphonse," I said, "there is some mystery about that omelet Tartarin—"
"Monsieur, I will confess," he blurted out. "It was not I who made it. It was Mademoiselle Dubois."
"What!" I exclaimed.
"Truly, monsieur. And I had to pretend to love her, that she should not betray me and lose me my position. But one day Monsieur Napoleon, who was already jealous, ordered her from the kitchen. Then I saw that discovery was imminent. I fled to America. I can never go back. But tell him the truth, monsieur; tell him that he has married the real creator of the omelet Tartarin. In his delight he will forgive the double deception. And now I must go home, for I was married three months ago—"
"You may go, Alphonse," I answered sadly. For human nature is very frail, and the thought of the black-eyed mademoiselle's deception overcame me. However, I brought her to the confession point when I was last in Paris. The Cafe Napoleon has recovered its pristine splendor. The omelet Tartarin secret seems likely to become hereditary. Alphonse cooks excellent planked steaks at the Hotel St. Charles.

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS-WORD PUZZLE

When the correct letters are placed in the white spaces this puzzle will spell words both vertically and horizontally. The first letter in each word is indicated by a number, which refers to the definition listed below the puzzle. Thus No. 1 under the column headed "horizontal" defines a word which will fill the white spaces up to the first black square to the right, and a number under "vertical" defines a word which will fill the white squares to the next black one below. No letters go in the black spaces. All words used are dictionary words, except proper names. Abbreviations, slang, initials, technical terms and obsolete forms are indicated in the definitions.

Craze for Fringe Still Holds Sway

Decoration, Together With All-White, in Fashion Limelight.

The craze for fringe and for all-white is evident in several designs of distinctive type, observes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. In one the slip is made of flesh-tinted satin, overlaid with white chiffon studded with crystal drops. Beginning at the hip line, deep crystal fringe in three rows forms a skirt that floats and sparkles and finds its last point of light in the small round ornaments that trim the white silver slippers. One other model of delightful simplicity and of brilliant effect is done in white satin and three rows of crystal and pearl fringe, these of a depth to cover the length of the figure. This beautiful fringe, sometimes opalescent, constitutes the form and substance of many attractive evening gowns. One shown in the latest forecasting pageant is built of white satin, outlined with an obvious design in rhinestones and glass beads, a straight tunic blouse to the hip line. Below this are three bias flounces cut in points, each finished with a narrow fringe of crystals and brilliants. Nothing more lovely in purity and elegance of style has been seen in many a day, and the idea will surely provide many a design for the gowns of brides. Not any of these models has a single note of decoration other than its own self-trimming, with the exception of an incidental motif of jewels.

Digressing from the glinting snow-white creations that are a joy apart from any one season or occasion are some enchanting gowns in delicate colors. One outstanding model is made of sea-green chiffon embroidered with tiny crystal beads and silver thread, like a giant cobweb shining with dew-drops, veiling a slip of silver tissue. The skirt is cut in a bias that ripples as it hangs, and the bodice displays a trailing repetition of the embroidered pattern. At one side of the gown a large calla lily, with a bud, in white satin sprinkled with diamond dust, holds one point of the skirt.

A mauve chiffon embroidered lacy all over in a wistaria design done in floss, colored beads and silver tinsel thread is a subtle colorful creation. An orchid chiffon is frankly and beautifully embroidered in a pattern of small flowers in natural shades outlined in silver and crystal. A refreshing composition is of lettuce-green crepe romaine richly embroidered in darker shades of green, with delicate high lights of beads, the needlework applied in bands on the skirt and across the top of the bodice. This gown is distinctly Grecian in scheme and feeling. Much flesh color veiled in white chiffon or marquisette is seen among the late models, the overdress almost invariably embroidered or beaded or ornamented with lace entreeux.

Kid Gloves Play Part in Fashions of Today

Kid gloves have at last gained some distinction. In place of the plain two-buttoned affairs, there are elaborately designed cuffs and flares, embroidered and beaded. Some slip over the hand without any fastening and others are buttoned at the sides. Colors play a great part in their decoration. In some cases the cuffs are perforated and inserts of bright colors form the design. Other models have silk cuffs, such as tan gloves with brown moire cuffs. Gold and silver trimmings are also to be found on the most fashionable gloves.

Ribbed Silk

White moire or ribbed silk is becoming as popular as satin and crepe de chine for evening gowns.

CARBON MONOXIDE DEATHS INCREASING

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

EVIDENCE of the danger of carbon monoxide continues to accumulate. Almost every morning paper tells of at least one case of death from automobile exhaust gas. The United States public health service has issued a special bulletin on the subject. Many state and city health departments have warned the public of this danger. Yet needless and preventable deaths still occur.

Everyone who owns or drives an automobile or auto truck should know that any internal-combustion engine, in burning gasoline, generates and throws off a poisonous gas, carbon monoxide, which will kill anyone exposed to it in a few minutes. If the carburetor is properly adjusted and the combustion of the gasoline is complete, there is less gas given off and so less danger.

But if the carburetor is not properly adjusted or if the mixture fed to the machine is too "rich," then more gas is generated with greater risk.

In the open air, with a wind blowing, the gas is blown away before it can do any harm. But even outdoors no one should crawl under a car in which the engine is running and the exhaust open.

In a closed space, such as a garage, the engine of a car will generate enough gas to overcome one in a few minutes. Engines should never be allowed to run in a garage, unless the doors and windows are open enough to get a through-and-through draft to carry out the gas.

Carbon monoxide is produced in other ways than by gasoline engines. Most of the cases of gas poisoning in this country, at least in previous years, are due to fuelless gas stoves, gas grates and gas heaters without drafts. Gas hot-plates and cooking stoves used in rooming houses, gas water heaters in bathrooms and the so-called "radiant heaters" are the most dangerous.

In Ohio alone, in the winter of 1922-23, carbon monoxide poisoning caused 61 deaths of which 42 were due to gas heaters.

Any gas heater or cooking stove should have a flue of some kind to carry off the gas that is produced by combustion. Water heaters in bathrooms are particularly dangerous on account of the small size of the rooms and the fact that the doors and windows are usually kept tightly closed while the heater is running. A water heater can generate enough gas in 15 minutes to cause suffocation.

Carbon monoxide is colorless, tasteless and odorless. Don't run any kind of a gasoline engine or gas stove in a closed room.

VENTILATING THE EAR

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

THE human ear needs air in order to work properly. Not the outer ear, which is prominent and visible. That gets plenty of air, except in the case of the flapper who keeps her ears covered with a mass of hair. But the inner ear, the invisible but important part of the ear where the machinery of hearing is hidden.

The outer ear is merely a funnel to catch the air waves and guide them into the canal. It is just like a megaphone or a loud speaker. We could lose our ears and be little the worse off as far as hearing is concerned. Many animals have small ears, but marvelously acute hearing.

The most important as well as the most sensitive part of the ear is the middle ear. It is separated from the outer canal by the eardrum, a delicate membrane stretched across the canal and so placed as to catch the sound waves which come in through the canal. These waves, when they reach the drum, make it vibrate and the vibration is carried by the three little ear bones to the auditory nerve which carries it to the brain and produces hearing in the brain. So anything which interferes with the vibration of the drum interferes with hearing.

If you will examine a bass drum, you will find that the maker has made several large holes in the side. They are to let the air in and out of the drum, so that the drum head will vibrate properly when the drummer strikes it. If the holes were not there, the pressure on both sides would not be equal. If the holes become stopped up, the sound becomes muffled.

The air pressure on the eardrum must be the same on both sides or the drum will not vibrate. How does the air get into the middle ear? Through a passage running from the back of the nose up into the bony cavity behind the drum. This canal was first described by Eustachius nearly four hundred years ago and has since then been called the Eustachian canal after its discoverer. It opens into the upper part of the throat just above and behind the tonsils.

If this tube becomes stopped up the drum cannot vibrate. We have all had the feeling of "stiffness" when we have had a cold. Swallowing, or blowing the nose with the mouth closed forces the air into the tube and relieves the pressure.

First Lady Proves Tactful And Able Helpmeet for President; Her Charm Has Won Admiration of All Nation

BOTH COOLIDGES ARE FLOWER LOVERS.

Charm, tact and efficiency; these are the characteristics which have made such a complete success of Mrs. Calvin Coolidge's tenure as First Lady of the Land.

Even before her distinguished husband had risen to his present high office, Mrs. Coolidge was one of the most popular of Washington's matrons, and since her occupation of the White House the Capital's enthusiasm for her has grown steadily.

One biographer of the President, R. M. Washburn, a former colleague in the Massachusetts Legislature, has written of the First Lady:

"She is an admirable complement to the President. When he seeks to fuse with the people, she is his vital link. She is a successful blender. She is of attractive appearance. She has a bright mind. She tactfully declines to commit herself on public questions that she may not embarrass her husband."

The charm and tact of Mrs. Coolidge never were more convincingly evidenced than they were by the manner in which she reared her sons. They attended the public schools of Northampton, Mass., and were in every other regard just plain American boys. When they grew up and wished to work during their vacations, no obstacle was placed by their mother. And they were capable workers, reflecting the splendid training that had been theirs.

When she first met Calvin Coolidge, Mrs. Coolidge was Miss Grace Anna Goodhue, teacher in the Clark School for the Deaf, at Northampton. She was the daughter of the late Andrew L. Goodhue, of Burlington, Vermont, who died in April of 1923, leaving a widow, Elmira Goodhue, mother of the President's wife. Mr. Goodhue was a deacon in the College Street Congregational Church and an inspector of steamboats on Lake Champlain.

Grace Anna Goodhue was graduated from the Burlington High School in 1897 and from the University of Vermont in 1902. Her marriage to Calvin Coolidge, then a young lawyer, took place on October 4, 1905.

COMPOSITION

"To sleep: perchance to dream—" He turned his head
And saw day's flare behind the heavy tower.
"Ay there's the rub; for in that sleep"—he said
And stared into the river for an hour.

"The pangs of disprized love—" He frowned and shifted.
Fog crept upon the unawakened town
Out of the muddy flow a dark swan drifted
And far along the shore vague bells came down.

"The undiscovered country—" There he turned
And heard a woman weeping in the street,
And saw a window where a candle burned
And caught the echo of departing feet.

"Thus conscience does make cowards
Morning drew
Pale silver to the marsh thru willow stems.
He scraped the edges of a muddy shoe
And spat into the Thames.

—George O'Neill.

HE WAS UNDER OATH.

The late Professor Rowland, of Johns Hopkins university, was the most eminent physicians since the days of Joseph Henry. Among his notable achievements in the realm of pure science was the calculation of the mechanical equivalent of heat and the use of gratings in spectrum analysis, for which purpose he devised a machine that could cut 40,000 lines to the inch on a plate of polished metal. In the practical application of his knowledge he was noted as the inventor of the multiplex telegram apparatus.

Some years ago, testifying in a case involving the Cataract Power company in answer to a question on cross examination as to who, in his opinion, was the greatest American scientist, he replied, "I am."

After leaving the court room one of the lawyers ventured to criticize this answer for its effect upon the jury, whereupon Rowland exclaimed:

"Well, what else could I say? Wasn't I under oath?"—New York Globe.

There were just five grocers in the town.

AROUND THE CORNER

Around the corner I have a friend,
In this great city that has no end;
Yet days go by and weeks rush on,
And before I know it a year has gone,
And I never see my old friend's face;
For life is a swift and terrible race.
He knows I like him just as well,
As in the days when I rang his bell
And he rang mine. We were younger then;
But now we are busy, tired men—
Tired with playing a foolish game;
Tired with trying to make a name.
"Tomorrow," I say, "I'll call on Jim,
Just to show that I'm thinking of him."
But tomorrow comes—and tomorrow goes;
And the distance between us grows
and grows.
Around the corner—yet miles away.
"Here's a telegram, sir"—Jim died today!
And that's what we get, and deserve
in the end—
Around the corner, a vanished friend.

Hark, Hark, the Lark!

A little daughter of the slums, on her first day in the country, saw a lark motionless, high in air, pouring forth its lovely music. She listened a moment, then she ran to the matron. "Oh, Miss May," she said, "there's a sparrow up there, and he can't git up and he can't git down, and he ain't doin' a thing but holler about it."

HARTMAN THEATER.

"The Nervous Wreck" with Otto Kruger and Jean May will be the attraction at the Hartman theater, Columbus, for three days beginning Monday night, March 9, with a matinee on Wednesday. This is the Owen Davis farce comedy which played an entire season at the Sam Harris theater in New York last season, and is the author's ninety-second play and said to be his best. Mr. Davis mixed melodrama and mirth with lightning like changing in the twists and quirks. First you are in the midst of a dime novelish sort of banditry with several gunmen and all that and then you are hearing epigrams from a comic weekly. Mr. Kruger's supporting cast including Jean May is one of brilliance and excellence. If you enjoy a good laughing show don't fail to see "The Nervous Wreck."

"Parasites" with Francine Larrimore as the star, which Mr. Lee Shubert will present for three days, the last half of the week, starting Thursday, March 12, is a play of American social life with the action taking place in the social colony of Bar Harbor. The author is Cosmo Hamilton who wrote "Scandal" and many other popular New York successes.

The new play comes to Columbus direct from its engagement at the Princess theater, Chicago with one of the best supporting casts ever seen on the American stage. Miss Larrimore's support includes Cecil Humphreys, Theresa Maxwell Conover, Beatrice Swanson and many others. Direct from her triumph in the Rachel Crothers' comedy "Nide People" of two seasons ago, Miss Larrimore comes to "Parasites" with difficult task before her of creating a characterization new to the American stage. This is one of the most brilliant roles of Miss Larrimore's career. Matinee Saturday. Mail orders for both attractions will be accepted at any time.

Dawn by the Sea

The glory of the new day came soundlessly. Peace was in the blue heaven, on the blue-green sea, on the green land. There was no wind, even when the currents of the deep moved in shadowy purple. The sea itself was silent, making no more than a sighing slumber-breath round the white sands of the Isle, or a hushed whisper where the tide lifted the long weed that clung to the rocks.—Fiona Macleod.

Formation of Ice

The surface of a river or lake freezes into solidity, first at the top; as more water freezes it forms beneath that already frozen. Ice forms over fresh water if the temperature of the air has been for a sufficient time at or below freezing point, but freezing is only possible after the whole mass of water has been cooled down to its point of maximum density, so that the subsequent cooling of the surface can give rise to no convection currents, which would cause diffusion of heat.

The Odd Fellows have 74 representatives and seven senators. "While much is being said of the decline of the influence of the church" says the board of temperance, "these figures bring out strikingly the fact that the little church on Main street, the meeting house in the wildwood, and the big city church are still furnishing the intelligence and character which direct the destinies of the nation.

"America was founded by men who were in the main, devoted believers in the Christian faith and the nation will not go far astray so long as it is directed according to the principles of the Fatherhood of God and the Brotherhood of Man as laid down by the Christian church."

Fooled Fruit Dealer

A magician who played at New Bedford, Mass., sauntered over to a fruit stand there and bought three oranges. He cut the first one in half and "extracted" a $10 bill, and from the other two he took $5 and $20 bills. When he asked for more oranges the dealer refused to sell them to him. Later the magician learned that the Italian had cut up a whole box of oranges in search of more money, says the Boston Globe.

Oldest Almanac?

Probably the almanac preserved in the British museum, which dates back 1,200 years before the birth of Christ, to the time of Rameses the Great of Egypt, is the oldest in the world. It is written on papyrus, in red ink, and covers a period of six years. The entries relate to religious ceremonies, to the fates of children born on given days, and to the regulation of business enterprises in accordance with planetary influences.

AMUSEMENTS

A "Sainted Devil" Rudolph Valentino's second Paramount starring picture since his return to the screen will be the feature at the Met theater next Monday for a run of three days.

With an excellent supporting cast, a story of dash and color, and rich settings which depict the Argentine and life in the Buenos Aires, "A Sainted Devil" is said to surpass even "Monsieur Beaucaire," which was received by critics and public alike with great acclaim. In this picture, which Forrest Halsey adapted from Rex Beach's story, "Rope's End," Valentino portrays the role of Don Alonzo Castro, a spirited young South American who travels up and down the scale of love and who fights at the drop of the hat for the woman he loves.

Helen D'Algy has the role of Julietta a dark-eyed, raven-haired beauty who captures all the space in Don Alonzo's heart despite the efforts of Carlotta, played by Nita Naldi, Dona Florencia, Dagmar Godowsky; and Carmelita, Louise Lagrange; who try to win him away. George Siegman has the colorful role of El Tigre, the wild bondit of the pampas, and other members of the cast are Antonio D. Algy, Jean Del Val, Roger Lytton, Isabel West, Raphael Bongini, Frank Montgomery, William Betts, Edward Elkus, A. De Rosa, Ann Brody, Evelyn Axzell and Marie Diller.

In the picture Valentino is given an opportunity to do the Argentine Tango for which he has gained considerable reputation and he has fights galore with bandits and bad men of the Argentine.

The hacienda life of the Argentine is shown in this production as well as the smart life of Buenos Aires, the Paris of the Americas.

Maryland "Trails"

By provision of an act of the Maryland legislature of 1704 all roads leading to courthouses were marked with two notches on trees on both sides of the road and roads branching off and leading to ferries had three notches, etc. There were various local marks, as "A" on roads leading to the state capital—Annapolis, etc. These marks were branded with a hot iron and colored red. Not many of these marks or even the trees survive.

Well?

The proper patient in the big hospital had had the best of care and attention not only from doctors but also from the nurses. When the time came for his discharge he fervently expressed his gratitude for all the kindness he had received. "And as for you, miss," he said in a choking voice, "you've been more like an angel from heaven than anything else; in fact, I look upon you as ardy 'uman."—The Lyons Mail.

Breeding Stock Is of Big ImportanceFowls Must Be Given Room and Exercise.

One of the greatest causes for poor hatches is the condition of the breeding stock during the hatching season. If the hens or rooster are inherently weak or have been put in unhealthy condition by lack of care combined with inclement weather, the germ in the egg will be weak at the time it is laid and will not hatch out well.

It is always advisable to pick out a pen of breeders rather than breed from everything in the average farm flock. No late maturing or under-developed pullets or males should be included in this pen, nor should any hens or roosters which are very old, overfat, or show signs of sickness or weakness.

The breeders should be given plenty of room in the house and be allowed to run out as soon as the weather and ground will permit. Their quarters should be kept clean and well ventilated. They should be fed a properly balanced ration. Dry mash should be kept in a trough where the hens can help themselves to it, but wet mash should not be fed, as it has a tendency to be weakening. The birds should be induced to take all the exercise possible through a light morning feeding of grain in a deep, dry, clean litter. At night they should be fed all the grain they will clean up.—O. C. Krum, Poultry Specialist, Colorado Agricultural College.

Garden Fence Useful in Carrying Various Crops

Plan to use the fences that surround your vegetable garden this year. They will carry good crops and utilize space often wasted. If you have board fences, tomatoes may be trained against them with loops of cloth and tacks, particularly the south exposure of the premises. Strings or chicken wire may be nailed to board fences upon which tomatoes, cucumbers, pole or string lima beans may climb. If you have wire fences, the tall peas and beans may be planted along them.

A 25-foot fence will support eight tomato plants three feet apart and with the warmth of boards reflecting the heat of the sun behind them fruits will ripen more quickly than those trained to stakes in the open or allowed to ramble over the ground.

Cucumbers used as climbing vines. Instead of being allowed to ramble over the ground, are something of a novelty with most gardeners; yet an observation of the vine fitted with tendrils shows that it is naturally a climber and it will attach itself to any support that happens to be handy. Greenhouse-grown cucumbers are always trained to string or wire, reaching from the earth to the roof of the house.

If vegetables are not desired, gourds to furnish playthings for the children are admirable decorations for the garden fences. They come in great variety and various shapes, sizes and colors.

Corn Plowing in Spring of Not Much Advantage

Little if any difference in yields of corn between that grown on land plowed in the spring are shown in the results obtained in tests made by the Ohio experiment station. As an average of six years fall plowing gave 70.74 bushels per acre and spring plowing, 70.81 bushels. Director Williams in commenting on the results of the test says:

"While there has been some variation in yield due to different seasonal conditions, it cannot be said that either time of plowing has an advantage over the other for this soil and climate."

Catalpas for Posts

Catalpa makes very good posts and is noted for the durable quality of the wood. Catalpas were formerly used for posts and rails and when their value became known there were many of them planted to be used as telephone poles, posts and cross-ties. Because of the ravages of the catalpa spinx, however, it has become a hazardous proposition and large plantings are not recommended in Indiana.

Farm Hints

In 1925 co-operative marketing will help solve many farm problems, but it will be no substitute for old-fashioned industry.

The new year is a good time to remember Emerson's true saying, "Nothing great was ever accomplished without enthusiasm."

One of the chief causes of failure with alfalfa and clover is lack of lime in the soil. It is useless to seed alfalfa and clover on these soils without first applying lime.

Sudan grass stubble has been found to harbor many chinch bugs and other insects during the winter. The plowing of such fields is, therefore, to be recommended as a means of destroying these overwintering insects.

Disease in many poultry flocks emphasizes the need of keeping the poultry house clean and well disinfected at all times. The farm flock functions best in healthful surroundings. Give the birds a fighting chance to do their best.

Scraps of HumorA DETACHABLE LEGEND

Caller—So this is the old settle you told me you had picked up at such a bargain. My dear, it's a perfect treasure! It looks as if there might be some real old legend connected with it.

Hostess—Well, there was, but at the price I offered, the dealer said he would have to keep the legend and connect it with an antique bedstead that he had.

The Supreme Test

"Does your husband treat you unkindly?"

"Certainly not!" said the woman.

"Then why do you want a divorce?"

"I don't actually want a divorce. I merely want to apply for one. Then I can judge by the kind of a fuss my husband makes whether he really cares for me or not."

German Police Dogs

German police dogs, while they do not seem demonstratively affectionate, are stanch and loyal, and conduct themselves with quiet dignity which is equalled by few other breeds. Many dogs in old age become snappy and cross, but police dogs do not have this tendency any more than dogs of other breeds.

FRIEDMAN'S
APPAREL FOR WOMEN

THIS PAPER WILL HAVE
SERIES BY IRVIN COBB

The famous Irvin S. Cobb, in the opinion of many people the best story teller of our time, has compiled a remarkable series of short, humorous stories which he has heard. They will appear under Mr. Cobb's name with the title, "My Favorite Stories," and are soon to begin in this paper. Watch for them and read them, because you never encountered such a collection of funny stories in your life. Speaking of anecdotes, Mr. Cobb says: "Americans did not invent or discover the short humorous story. Indeed, some short stories still are making the rounds which were old when the Pyramids were young. Probably the piper who piped before Moses rounded out his act with one of the standard jokes of the period—a joke which, dressed in new clothes, is doing duty somewhere today. The mother-in-law joke could not have originated with Adam because Adam had no mother-in-law, but I have not the slightest doubt that Cain began using it after his marriage. And beyond peradventure Father Noah whined away many a dragging half-hour in the Ark by telling Shem, Ham and Japhet the one which begins: 'It seems there were two Irishmen named Pat and Mike. And Pat said to Mike, 'Faith, an' be jabbers!'"

"So it would not do for us to lay claim to the sole responsibility for the short humorous story. But I am quite certain that we, more than any other people, have made it a part of our daily life. Americans of whatsoever rank like to tell short stories and like to laugh at them. There are short stories which sum up the characteristics of white Americans or black Americans, Jews or Gentiles, city folk or country folk more completely than could ponderous essays or scholarly expositions. It is of record that Abraham Lincoln, in the darkest days of this Union, cured more than one crisis with some homely anecdote, some aptly barbed retort.

"In this series I have written, I have sought to choose those short stories which have made the greatest appeal to me. Some of them I heard years ago; others no longer ago than yesterday. I have tried to repeat them in the form in which they were uttered in my presence. I hope the reader may enjoy them as much as I have enjoyed the work of compiling the collection."

WOULDN'T STAND FOR CHANGE OF KEEPERS

Love of his old keeper, an aged employee of the Paris zoo, is the only explanation of an unusual strike on the part of Bobby, a famous elephant, whose back has carried children, rich and poor, for 22 years, says the London Mail. Every day during that time Bobby's caretaker filled buckets with water, potato peelings and oats. But he was growing old and the government decided to replace him without consulting the elephant. The first two days the beast refused to eat and belched loudly whenever attendants attempted to make him carry his usual load of youngsters. His fury increased until he began to demolish benches and tear holes in the sides of the elephant house, rushing everywhere looking for his old master. To stop the destruction the old keeper was recalled and received an affectionate welcome from the elephant, who caressed the tip of his ear with his trunk, making noises which the old man interpreted as cooling.

The Rebuke

A. S. Wildey, president of the Wholesale Beauty Trade association, said at a banquet in Atlantic City:
"Beauty traders hear some very good things from time to time. A masseur was giving a chorus girl a treatment the other day when another chorus girl came in, and the two beauties began to quarrel.
"Well, anyhow," said one of the girls, "I'm not like you for sitting around with men at all hours of the day and night playing poker."
"The other girl looked at her friend's frock—it was one of those transparent frocks that we've been importing by the thousand from Paris lately—and then she said in a very significant voice:
"You only show your hand in poker."

Say "Otiose," Not "Lazy"
Are cross-word puzzles helpful? The other day we were doing one when we had to find a six-letter synonym for "lazy." As a starter we already had "o" and from somewhere within us came the whisper "otiose." We hurried to the dictionary and verified its meaning. "Otiose" has now become fixed in our vocabulary. Not only that, but we have directed the attention of friend wife to the word, with the hope that when next she feels like characterizing us with the shorter and uglier term, she will substitute "otiose." It is much less jarring.—Boston Transcript.

Wanted—A Grandmother
Maizie Ellen played with some children next door and they were always talking about their grandmother doing this or that for them. Maizie Ellen had no grandmother, and it worried her because she could not refer to one. She asked her mother, but, of course, mother could not provide a grandmother for her. Finally she approached her Aunt Kate, whom she was visiting one day: "Aunt Kate, I want a grandma. You got gray hair and look just like a grandma. I believe I'll just call you grandma. I want one. All the other little girls have one."

Prepared for the Worst
There was an epidemic of smallpox in the town in a western state; the edict had gone forth that all must be vaccinated.
While waiting in the doctor's office for that purpose one day a small boy came rushing in.
The doctor, patting the lad on the head, inquired what he could do for him, to which the boy replied: "I came here to get assassinated."

Tree Growing Is Urged
The American Forestry association is urging the purchase by the government of thousands of acres of cut-over land and the replanting or seeding of these areas with forest trees. Many of these acres, it is maintained, can never be used for anything but tree growing. It is argued that a large appropriation for this purpose would not be objected to by the tax-paying public.

WATCH BACK AFTER
STRANGE TRAVELS

Maryland Man's Lost Time-piece Is Returned

Baltimore.—Wade G. Bounds of Allen, Md., looked at his watch just before retiring at 11:30 p. m., last December 23, at Chestertown, Md. He did not see it again for more than a month and then only when he identified it for a stranger who had been trying to find its owner.
Meanwhile the watch had traveled far, although the only point it is positively known to have reached is Three Oaks, Mich. It came back to its owner from the Michigan city.
Some 15 or 20 days ago Mrs. Charlotte Frank of Baltimore received from a drygoods firm in Three Oaks a parcel post package containing a donation for a lodge to which she belongs. On opening the bundle she discovered in addition to the expected goods, a smaller package containing a watch on the chain of which was suspended a key and as a charm a miniature gold baseball engraved "W. G. B." with the inscription "Washington, L. F., Captain, 1922."
No left fielder of the Washington American league club possessed any such initials as inquiry showed. Further search for an owner led to the discovery that W. G. Bounds had been captain and left fielder on the baseball nine at Washington college, Chestertown, Md., that year. When he was located in Baltimore he was able to give a convincing description of the watch and establish his title to it.
Mrs. Frank wrote to the Three Oaks drygoods company from whom she received the parcel and had a reply saying that no one there knows anything about the watch. Bounds says he forgot about putting it under the pillow until the night after he did so when he had gone away from Chestertown and on writing a friend there he was informed it could not be found.

Finds Camels Hungry,
Thirsty, Balky at Zoo

Milwaukee.—This fasting business is the bunk, as far as the two camels, fine specimens of dromedaries, at the Washington park zoo are concerned.
"It's a case of three squares a day for them," said Edward H. Bean, director of the zoo. "Alfalfa hay by the bale is dumped into their stalls and they simply eat all the time. They demand just as much water as any other animal."
Camels in the desert, Mr. Bean said, are frequently trained to fast for days or weeks at a time. They can be trained to do without food because of the food value stored away in the huge hump on their backs, he said, but the theory that all camels can get along without food for certain periods has been denied by camel men he has met.
"The camel is the most ornery of critters," said Mr. Bean. "If we want them to stand up they sit down. If we want them to sit down, they stand up. They balk at everything, frequently become dangerous and are about the hardest animals to handle that inhabit the zoo."

She's a Superbeauty—and Must Veil Face

Tunis.—The "Queen of Queens"—the girl selected as the most beautiful in Tunis—has been obliged to renounce her throne because of protests from the Mohammedan population at her being obliged to show her face unveiled before crowds, contrary to the precepts of the Koran.
The beautiful one is Mile. Neidja Bentothman. She yielded reluctantly to the pleas of the Tunisian fetes committee, which emphasized that her assumption of the quasi-regal functions might result in serious incidents.

Hawaii Has 66,647
Japanese-Americans

Honolulu.—A total of 1,265 American citizens of Japanese ancestry registered as voters in the territorial election in the last fiscal year, according to Gov. Farrington's report to Secretary of the Interior Hubert Work. The number of American citizens of Chinese ancestry who registered was 1,840.
Of the Japanese population of 125,368 in the territory, 66,647 were born in the islands, and are, therefore, American citizens, Governor Farrington said.

U. S. Will Pay $1.55
for Bill Fiske's Bugle

Washington.—What happened to Bill Fiske's bugle?
This mystery is destined to go down with the questionable age of Ann as one of the great unsolved interrogations.
Who is Bill? Why, he had a bugle, and what happened to it no one knows. But the people of the United States are going to pay $1.55 for it anyway, for the item has been approved by the Treasury department, by house and senate committees, by the President and innumerable other committees, commissions and officials.
In the claim sent to congress it reads:
"Bill Fiske's bugle, $1.55."

The Green Fan
Romance

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

"IT IS a very small inheritance, my dear," smiled Helen's father sadly as he bade her open the sandalwood box that always stood on his writing desk. "Besides the life insurance, there is the house and furniture, and the contents of this box." His weak fingers inserted a small gold key in the lock and raised the lid. Inside was a small oblong package wrapped in many folds of tissue paper.
"Open it, dear."
Helen obeyed. The tissue paper revealed at last a small green fan of Chinese origin. Strange to say, only half of the fan was there. It had been carefully split through the center, leaving one carved ivory stick on one end and cut paper on the other. The green paper was covered with small enameled figures that formed lovely pictures, and there was much fine gold writing in Chinese ideographs.
"What is it, father?" asked the girl, more to please him than because she was interested in the broken fan. She was trying to keep up her courage in the face of the sorrow that was creeping toward her. Her father had been stricken with an unusual malady and the doctors had given him up. Helen had hoped against hope, and wondered if he had felt the end drawing nearer and had been prompted to have this last talk with her. "What is the meaning of the broken fan, father?" she repeated.
"It is more or less of a mystery. Years ago when I was in China I had a partner named Kerwin. There was in our employ a Chinaman who robbed us shamelessly. He was a trusted man and had large sums of our money at his disposal. He appropriated the money and fled. It about ruined us, and broke up our partnership. Just before I left China a missionary from some distant station called upon me and gave me the sandalwood box with the fan inside—just as you have seen it. It seems that our man Cheng had been converted and was now a Christian. He had confessed his sin and had sent the broken fan to me, while another box containing the other half of the fan had been sent to James Kerwin. The whole fan reveals the hiding place of the stolen money, and his Chinese mind evolved the simple plan of sending a half of the torn fan to each partner. Neither half is of any use without the other."
"Do you know where Mr. Kerwin is, father?" asked Helen after a while.
"No, my dear. I suspect he is dead. I have sought him for years, because I wanted to renew our friendship, but he was fond of traveling and went from place to place. I have not much faith in the hiding place of the treasure. That is why I call it a sorry inheritance."
Months afterward, when the loss of her father had become less poignant, Helen came across the green fan. A sudden impulse prompted her to advertise for the other half of the fan. It must be somewhere.
"WANTED—The other half of a torn green fan. Please communicate with H. L. Moore, P. O. Box 2009."
It was one November day that Helen received her first reply. It was a brief note, saying that the writer owned such a fan and would be glad to discuss the matter. The note was signed, "Benjamin Kerwin."
A few days later Benjamin Kerwin came to see her.
"Your father—is he living?" asked Helen.
He shook his head sadly. "Before he died he gave me the sandalwood box and half of the fan and I put them away among my belongings. I have not much faith in Chinese mysteries," he told her.
"Did you bring the fan, Mr. Kerwin?" asked Helen.
"Oh, yes," and he drew a small parcel from his pocket. They fitted the two pieces together and mended it with transparent gummed paper.
With the aid of a Chinese student who read the riddle of the fan, the way to the recovery of the treasure was made very plain. The two young people studied maps and routes for many months before Mr. Kerwin left on his next trip to China.
"I have been told that it is a dangerous country," objected Helen, who was dying to go along on the trip, for the romance appealed to her inherited love of adventuring.
"I am accustomed to going among the people," declared Kerwin.
"Sometimes I am tempted to tear up my half of the fan so that you cannot go into such needless danger," said the girl loyally.
All the way home that night the young man puzzled over that remark. "If she knew how I am tempted to give up the whole thing—even the purchasing end of business, so that I may remain near her, she would not add her weight of bugaboos in the way!"
At last the moment came to say good-by. "Helen," he burst out, "marry me and let us make it a honeymoon voyage!" So they were married that very day. When they finally discovered the location related on the fan they realized that they had been hoaxed by the oblique-minded Cheng. "Never mind, darling," said Kerwin happily. "If we didn't find the treasure, we did find each other!"
And that is why you will find the green fan carefully framed in glass, hanging on the wall of their home.

ARTIFICIAL VOICE BOX

Sufferers from cancer of the throat need no longer fear a radical operation because it involves removal of the larynx, or "voice box"; for science's latest gift to the human race, illustrated here, is the artificial larynx, developed by Dr. John E. Mackenty of New York and Dr. Harvey Fletcher of the Western Electric A. T. & T. laboratories. When the larynx is removed in cancer operation the wind-pipe is provided with an orifice in the front of the neck, to permit breathing, and the victim can make no intelligible sounds. This artificial larynx, provided with a pair of rubber vocal cords, sets in vibration the air forced up from the lungs, and the vibrations are carried through the "pipe stem" to the mouth, where they are modified by lips, teeth, tongue and soft palate as in ordinary speech.

Mystical "Forty."

The Children of Israel were in the wilderness forty years, and they sent spies into the Promised Land for forty days in advance of their own going. Moses was in the Mount of the Law forty days. Isaac was forty years old when he was married, and so was Esau. Eli was judge of Israel for forty years. Goliath defied the army of Israel forty days before David killed him. Solomon reigned forty years. Elijah fled forty days, from Mount Carmel to Mount Horeb. Jonah gave the city of Nineveh forty days' warning of its impending destruction. Jesus fasted forty days, and appeared to his disciples at intervals for forty days after his resurrection. St. Paul five times received forty strokes with the scourges.

It's the Chicks You Raise That Pay You a Profit

Chicks that die mean lost profits whether they die in the shell or after they are hatched. That's why the first step toward bigger poultry profits lies in choosing the right incubators and brooders.

The most successful poultry raisers, as well as most county agents, and agricultural colleges recommend Buckeye Incubators and Brooders as the real money makers.

The time is passed when the measure of the value of a memorial is quantity. I hope the time has come when that measure is quality. I care not whether the material be marble or granite, its future will be measured by the character of the design. It is quality that has preserved for us the finest examples in painting and sculpture. It is quality that will stamp our imprint upon cemeteries of the future. Simplicity, correct lines and proportions and proper ornamentation are the real fundamentals. A design that is right, material that is lasting, and perfect workmanship, spells success for the future of this industry and the beautification of the cemetery. Will you let me help you select the memorial for your lot. Call at show room. NO AGENTS.

PRESIDENT'S WHITE HOUSE FOR SUMMER

Mayflower Will Anchor Off Shore at Swampscott, Massachusetts.

An extended cruise on the presidential yacht, Mayflower, skirting the Atlantic coast as far north as Maine, occupies a place among President Coolidge's vacation plans for the summer.

The president probably will use the Mayflower to go to the proposed "summer white house" at Swampscott, Massachusetts, it was revealed at the White House recently. One of the reasons for selecting Swampscott was the fact there is good anchorage for the Mayflower off shore from the country house at which the president plans to spend several weeks in late July or August.

Definite arrangements including the time he will spend away from Washington, the exact time he will go and other details have not been settled but the president has decided that during this coming summer he can relax somewhat the rigorous attention to routine executive duties which has characterized his conduct in office ever since he succeeded President Harding.

In view of the fact that he plans to make a more extended vacation than usual in mid-summer, Mr. Coolidge has curtailed previously made tentative plans for several trips in the early spring. He has practically decided he will not attend the celebration of the battle of Lexington and Concord in Massachusetts April 17, nor the convention of the advertising clubs of the world at Houston, Texas, May 10, to both of which he has been invited. Conditions later may alter his present attitude toward both of these, however.

NO OUTBREAK AT FUNERAL OF RAY WREN

Prosecuting Attorney Holds Slaying Justified—No Inquest.

Bellefontaine, Ohio, March 7 (U.P.) With special deputies on guard to prevent possible outbreaks the body of Ray Wren, alleged lunatic and victim of a posse's bullets, was buried here late today.

Despite rumors that the citizens of Rushsylvania, near where Wren was killed when he resisted arrest, had planned to avenge Wren's death with violence, the large crowd of several thousand persons was orderly thruout the service.

Neighbors of Wren charged he was slain by the officers without justification.

The slaying climaxed a three days siege of the Wren farm house where Ray and his brother, Harry, barricaded themselves against arrest on affidavits charging lunacy.

Thursday morning they were captured by a posse of Sheriff Wooley and ten deputies when they went out into a field at the rear of their home.

Harry gave up when he saw he was outnumbered by the posse but Ray is said to have resisted and was shot.

The wound was at first believed to be merely a flesh wound in the leg. Later it was discovered that he had been shot thru the abdomen. He was moved to a hospital and died that night following an operation.

Prosecutor Godwin held the slaying justifiable and refused to call an inquest over Wren's body.
